

Problem Statement:

Configure Chrome Browser and navigate to <https://amazon.in>

Search for Laptops.

Print the total number of links on the page.

Also print the link and link text of the page.

This screenshot shows the search results for 'Laptops' on Amazon.in. It displays two sponsored product listings: an HP 15 Core i5 laptop and an HP Pavilion x360 14-inch laptop. To the left, there are filters for memory size (Up to 2 GB, 3 GB, 4 GB, 6 GB, 8 GB, 12 GB, 16 GB & more) and display size (Up to 9.9", 10"-10.9", 11"-11.9", 12"-12.9", 13"-13.9"). The top of the page includes the Amazon header, a search bar, and various navigation links. The bottom features the Windows taskbar.

Flow Information:

Initially the relative path is set for chrome driver using System.setProperty method. The Web driver object is created to instantiate Chrome Driver. The 'Get' method is used on web driver object to launch the site for 'www.amzon.in'. Chrome browser is launched with web site having the text box for searching along with Search button. Web Element class is used to locate these two elements by xpath locator. The sendKeys method invoked to input the text 'Laptops' in the search textbox .By using the click method the search button is clicked and search results page is displayed. Using the 'tagName' locator in for loop, all the elements with anchor tag  are located on results paged and stored those web elements in List collection. Then by invoking the size method , the total number of links are printed on the console. Using getAttirubute method with 'href' is used to display the Page link Url and getText method is invoked to link text.
